

WILLIAM A. SHUTKIN

CURRICULUM VITAE

PROFILE

Award-winning educator, attorney and social entrepreneur building and leading high-impact, mission-driven organizations in the higher education and sustainability fields whom legendary environmentalist David Brower described as a “visionary creating solutions to today's problems with a passion that would make John Muir and Martin Luther King equally proud.”

- A noted collaborator, field-builder and fundraiser, joining scholars, professionals and policymakers from across disciplines, sectors and social groups in common cause and marshaling critical resources – financial, political and human – to deliver best-in-class social impact results. Raised over $20M to date from foundations, government agencies, corporations and individuals, including over $3.5M in 2015. Generated over $15M to date in revenue from income-earning products and services.
- A thought leader who has authored two books on and helped pioneer the fields of social entrepreneurship and sustainability. Taught and lectured across the US and abroad and mentored some of today’s most accomplished social entrepreneurs and sustainability leaders in non-profit, business and government sectors, with “professor of practice” appointments at leading graduate schools such as MIT.
- A strategic thinker and communicator creating and managing high-performance business plans and operations, turning bold ideas into winning programs, partnerships and institutions for organizations with 5-50 employees and annual budgets up to $10M. Develop award-winning, data-driven marketing and communication strategies that increase visibility, brand value and enrollments.

- Developed business design for Newmarket Energy Partners, a third-party renewable energy provider for low-income areas, with Denver real estate company Zocalo Development.
- Conducted market scan of U.S. businesses engaged in climate change and sustainability policies and programs for Urban Sustainability Associates; advised outdoor apparel company GoLite on its first-ever sustainability report; consulted to Toyota Motor Sales USA on sustainable mobility and smart cities.
- Served as six-month, part-time interim chief executive for the Extreme Ice Survey, a climate change organization founded by James Balog with $500K budget and five staff, stewarding its transition from a research program to a high-impact non-profit with new strategic plan, core management systems, over $100K in new funding commitments and formal affiliation with CU Boulder's Institute for Arctic and Alpine Research.

Business Alliance for Local Living Economies, San Francisco, CA

Interim Executive Director/Consultant

2007-2008

Led the world's fastest growing trade association of sustainable businesses in transition to new staff and board leadership, strategy and program design as part of nine-month consulting engagement. Oversaw 80 member networks, five professional staff and $1M budget.

- Instituted core management systems, including audit/financial, legal, HR and IT; implemented new operating and funding partnerships in key markets; delivered new strategic plan with two new programs as well as new Economic Justice Initiative.

- Secured $800K in multi-year funding commitments from foundations; organized largest-ever annual BALLE conference, with over 400 attendees over three days.
- Mentored staff and coached board of directors on best practices in governance, administration and financial management; recruited and managed executive search firm for hiring permanent, full-time chief executive.

Orton Family Foundation, Manchester, VT and Denver, CO

President and CEO

2004-2006

Headed up operating foundation with a sustainable land use and technology mission. Led 13 staff, $2.5M annual budget and two office locations in a Policy Governance system.

- Managed year-long reorganization, with over 50 per cent reduction in headcount and budget.
- Spun-off CommunityViz, a planning software division, into an independent for-profit company and acquired PlaceMatters, a planning technology consulting organization.
- Developed and implemented new mission, strategy and program, including three new program areas; identity system and award-winning website; annual national PlaceMatters conference and award program; Orton Innovation in Place book series with Island Press, Orton Family Foundation Fellowship and NPR radio series; knowledge management and evaluation systems; and, strategic partnerships with the David and Lucile Packard Foundation, Lincoln Institute of Land Policy and other national and regional organizations.

New Ecology, Inc., Cambridge, MA

Founder and President

1999-2004

Founded and led pioneering sustainable community development research and consulting organization promoting best practices and information exchange among community development corporations, businesses and universities. Managed five professional staff, four part-time MIT graduate student interns and $1M budget. In 2019, NEI has over 30 full-time staff with offices in five states and includes the leading energy/water conservation technology company, Wegowise, founded by NEI and Boston Community Capital.

- Created the Green CDCs Initiative, a national model, spurring the launch of the Local Initiative Support Corporation's Green Development Center and evolving the community development field to align environmentally-friendly urban development practices with social justice goals.
- Conceived and produced the path-breaking 2004 national report, "The Costs and Benefits of Green Affordable Housing," the first business case for greening low-income housing and community development, funded by five national foundations and used by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development in expanding HUD's sustainable housing programming.
- Hosted annual Regional Sustainable Development Forum at MIT showcasing best practices in sustainable development, green building and green business in the greater Boston region featuring major keynotes including U.S. Senator John Kerry.
