

Karen Marie Crofton

Boulder, CO

Karen is a lecturer at the Leeds School of Business as well as an investor focusing on data analytics and fintech. Karen was previously a Principle at the Rocky Mountain Institute dedicated to removing market barriers preventing the transformation of energy systems. Karen also spent 15 years at Air Products & Chemicals in roles from Project Management to Facility Operations to Corporate New Business Ventures. She holds a degree in Mechanical Engineering from Bucknell University, an MBA from Rice University, and a Master's in Data Analytics from CU Boulder. Karen is an active mentor in Boulder's Startup Community, Chair of the City of Boulder's Environmental Advisory Board, and on the Board of Rice University.

.