ACADEMIC RESEARCH

Ph.D. Dissertation:

Lionberger, E. (2021). The Construction of Identity through Tattoos: A Semiotic and Performative Exploration of Trauma (Doctoral dissertation, Duquesne University). Retrieved from <https://dsc.duq.edu/etd/2018>

- Analysis of the signification and performative aspects of Auschwitz concentration camp tattoos and 9/11 memorial tattoos, while considering the changes in meaning and interpretation that occur within and throughout space and time. In 6 chapters I explore differing semiotic and performative aspects of tattoos through various trauma theories. Ultimately, explores the relationship between tattoos and identity grounded in trauma, as a form of visual narratology within the communication and rhetoric field, guided by the semiotic tradition and the field of performance studies

Master’s Thesis:

Lionberger, E. (2017). The Syrian refugee crisis: A rhetorical analysis of president Barack Obama, Hillary Clinton, and President Donald J. Trump’s political discourse about Syrian refugees. (2017). Electronic Theses and Dissertations. <https://openprairie.sdstate.edu/etd/1179>

- Analysis of political discourse using framing theory as well as metaphorical and ideological criticism surrounding Syrian refugee crisis. Specifically, research focused on the different rhetorical styles and discourse tactics of three prominent U.S.

politicians via social media. Analyzed discourse via use of metaphors and ideographs in relation to Syrian refugees
